

Clare Landrigan

I will have two children at NSHS next year. Jack will be a junior and Ryan will be a freshman. Each attended Brown Middle School and Angier Elementary School. We live in Waban. I currently co-own Teachers for Teachers, a staff development organization founded in 2004. I provide customized staff development to many school systems in the state and present nationally on literacy instruction and assessment. My professional background includes being an elementary school teacher, a district administrator for Wayland Public Schools and a staff member at Tufts University.

I previously served on the Angier School Council and the Angier After School Board. I have a broad experience in facilitating organizational change; designing strategic plans; and providing training on leadership development. My experience working in and with a wide range of school systems will allow me to provide insight and additional perspectives.

I would welcome the opportunity to serve as a parent member of the NSHS School Council. My family will be part of NSHS for the next four years and this opportunity seems like the perfect fit for my interests and expertise.
